Internet is not only a place where we need to study but we can also learn lots of things by visiting different websites.2 days ago we headed up to Birmingham to celebrate Easter and spent the day at Aston Villa Football Club with a couple of our recent born-again friends. It was good to get out and meet up with these guys after so long and to celebrate such a special day. We didn't make it to the Villa, but we did stop for lunch, and since we were in an area with no vegan options, it was great to stop at the 'Salad Bar' in the side of the main building where I could eat the food that I want and not worry about all the other options they had to chose from. I had the 'Salad Bar' Garden Salad (3 euros!) with roasted vegetable quinoa (1.50 euros), Red Lea Soup (2 euros), toasted bread (2 euros) and a slice of apple pie (3 euros) for a total of 7.50 euros. I was happy with the variety of food and the level of quality and price, and the fact that I can go into this place in the side of a football stadium and not have to worry about not finding anything. On our way home, we stopped at the 'Markets' in the main entrance of the stadium. They are open everyday until 10pm, and I only saw them close at 6pm as I was just in time to get a last drink of beer and see the sun go down. I had the Pumpkin Bun Snack (4 euros) that was covered in roasted pumpkin seeds (1.50 euros), and on a piece of toast with spread I got a sandwich (5 euros), and a mug of tea (3 euros). This was all just what I needed after a day of walking around the stadium site and shopping. The bad thing was 2d92ce491b
