Empire earth patch is a free mod that replaces the EMPIRE earth terrain class with an updated version of the original legacy patch. Empire earth patch was first released on the game changer page as a direct response to the texture pack world patch that was uploaded in game. We are sharing empire earth patch with you here because it was requested by more than one user here on the site and also we think that it is the best response to the legacy world texture pack. Empire earth patch 1.0.20 was developed over the last days by DCWolf and based on the same code base as the world patch. We spent a couple of days testing empire earth patch on our private server and also the source code was fully documented so you can follow it and customize it. This mod was named Empire earth patch in order to distinguish it from the original world patch which was released a while ago and was based on the original legacy patch. This mod can be installed manually but if you want to speed up the installation process you can use our archive and just extract the files from there. Empire earth patch should work fine with the original legacy patch version, and the only thing you should be careful of is that all the vanilla objects created with the legacy patch have no corresponding objects with the empire earth patch, but if you remove the objects from the legacy patch and use empire earth patch you will have all the objects which are used by this mod. Installation Instructions on how to install empire earth patch can be found on the game changer page. F.A.Q. Empire earth patch doesn't have any internal dependencies, if your game won't start after installing this mod, you will need to install the required mods first. Empire earth patch is compatible with all the mods from the destiny 2 forge, if it won't work for you, make sure that it's compatible with your mod. Empire earth patch updates the default vanilla environment but doesn't replace it, if you want to get rid of the current vanilla environment and replace it with a different one, you can use the world patch from the world mod bundle. Empire earth patch works only with the destiny 2 forge which has been released since the development of this mod and it doesn't work with legacy forge mods. Empire earth patch is designed to modify some specific features and it
