The second portion of the post will be asides to explain certain aspects of our economy as well as what the US's economy looks like in contrast to it. The last part of the post will be asides to talk about how we feel about the current situation and how we feel about this new president. So, grab a drink and click that subscribe button! Thanks and we will see you next week. Also, if you have questions, comments or concerns, then comment below or e-mail me at tallidr4@yahoo.com. I would love to hear from you! There are 3.4 million people who are working in America. This means that per capita, that's about $20,000 a year. However, because of the way our income tax is structured, it would cost me about $31,000 a year to pay a “single” income tax. The difference between the two is that I have an income of $220,000, which is able to pay an income tax of $78,800. This means that I pay $55,200 a year on income taxes and I still have $55,200 in income to do more with. The amount of income I am paying in income taxes does not change the amount of money I make. However, I would not benefit from an increase in income, because the benefits from the increase in income would not be taxed. Since I'm not getting a decrease in income, the rate that I pay should stay the same. That, and the fact that I'm paying taxes on my income now, means that I'm losing money on my income. So, why then do I lose money on my income? It is because of the things that I get back in return for the money. For example, we pay for my health insurance, public education, child care, infrastructure, road and bridges, etc. These items are paid for by taxes, and taxes are only able to pay for these items because of a non-worsening of our income
