Jun 10, 2020 HBsAg positivity in recipients of living related liver transplants: a rare but serious event. The occurrence of hepatic cancers in livers transplanted from HBsAg positive donors was studied. An extensive review of the literature yielded 20 cases of HBsAg-positive liver grafts recipients. The mean age at transplant of these 20 patients was 13.6+/-4.7 years. Of the 20 patients (n=20), 15 had a diagnosis of chronic liver disease (CLD) and 4 were acute liver failure patients (ALF). Hepatitis B virus (HBV) infection was confirmed by serum HBeAg/HBV DNA testing. Liver biopsies were obtained in 10 patients. Eighteen patients were male, and 13 of them were positive for HBeAg. Mean follow-up time after transplant was 77.5+/-51.5 months. Hepatitis B reactivation was the most common complication and occurred in seven patients (35%). Two patients died of hepatocellular carcinoma (HCC) at 15 and 24 months after transplant. The initial incidence of HCC was 6.3% (1/16). This incidence was not different from that of non-HBeAg+ transplanted recipients. HCC occurred in 3/4 patients with ALF at 24.2+/-1.3 months, in 2/7 patients with CLD at 29.5+/-10.8 months, and in 1/8 HBeAg+ patients at 49.2 months. HBV reactivation, HCC occurrence, or death due to HCC occurred in 5 of the 9 HBeAg-positivity. We recommend that liver recipients with positive serologic tests for HBsAg or HBeAg be followed carefully, as their post-transplantation course may be complicated by hepatic carcinomas.Q: How to write one-time coupon in php?
