“The game that we are delivering is the closest match to real-life football that the fans have ever seen,” FIFA Executive Producer Dan Robson said. “The technology used to create this vision is the most powerful we’ve ever had, which will give the players and fans the most realistic match experience on Xbox One, PlayStation 4, and PC.” To get to the new era in football gameplay, teams will play three matches in FIFA 22. Players, coaches and commentators can be heard voicing commands on the sidelines and monitors or screens that replace the usual lineups that the cameras usually show. In FIFA 20, players will use the new attack mechanic that will improve the game play. But in FIFA 22, the game will feature new and improved player control, ball physics and ball intelligence to create the most realistic football experience. The visuals for the gameplay were created using upgraded real-world data captured from 22 high-intensity matches. The data used for each match was then condensed, synchronized, and used to create all of the animations, player features, and the image captured in the game. The game will be available on Xbox One, PlayStation 4 and PC, and will also be available on the Xbox One X console with 4K graphics support. Early purchase on EA Access is available for all users. FIFA 22 will also include more than 350 clubs and leagues worldwide to play as a free update, as well as more than 8,000 authentic players and teams from around the world. The game will also have a number of Play Your Way modes that can be customized or created by the players. More details will be announced in the coming weeks. FIFA Ultimate Team fans, there are a number of new modes and features available for the game. The FIFA Ultimate Team card game continues to provide players with unique combinations of new and licensed players, custom content and gameplay updates to match your personal style. There are several new and improved modes, including the Leaderboards which will feature further details on your progress that can be shared to other platforms. Leading the charge will be some of the most iconic teams in the game, including Real Madrid, Manchester United, Manchester City, PSG, Inter Milan, Chelsea, Liverpool, AC Milan, Bayern Munich, Barcelona, and more. FIFA 22 is arriving just in time for the launch of the FIFA Ultimate Team card game and is designed to
